I have just read your statement John. I have not spoken with Moira but I did see her tweet when she made clear that this protest was hijacked by these extremists. You may have more information than is available publicly, but prima facie this does not look good in my humble opinion.

John I don't share all of Moira's views as you would probably know but we are a broad church ... surely it would have been better to announce an internal investigation which would have given Moira the opportunity to get proper advice, and more time for you and the broader party to consider the ramifications in the cold light of day.

Cheers Sarah
