Comments made in the wake of Queen Elizabeth II's death by Greens Senator Mehreen Faruqi have been slammed as "insensitive" and "ignorant".

In a social media post just hours after Her Majesty's death was announced, Ms Faruqi said she can't "mourn the leader of a racist empire built on stolen lives, land and wealth of colonised peoples".

"Condolences to those who knew the Queen," she wrote on Twitter.

"I cannot mourn the leader of a racist empire built on stolen lives, land and wealth of colonised peoples.

“We are reminded of the urgency of Treaty with First Nations, justice & reparations for British colonies & becoming a republic.”

The Senator's tweet prompted outrage given how soon it was published after Her Majesty's death.

Speaking to SkyNews.com.au, the Institute of Public Affairs' Gideon Rozner said the "unhinged" rant was embarrassing for an Australian Senator.

“Mehreen Faruqi, Adam Bandt and the Greens should give it a rest. Just take the day off,” he said.

“Mehreen Faruqi's unhinged and pig-ignorant contributions would be embarrassing for a second-year arts student, let alone a federal senator.

“The Greens' perennial nihilism and historical revisionism may appeal to the 10 per cent of Australians who vote for them, but will always be toxic for the mainstream.”

Chairman of the Australian Monarchist League Eric Abetz also expressed his disappointment at Senator Faruqi's "appaling" intervention.

"The insensitivity of the comments is matched by an ignorance of matters historical which combine to make for an unseemly intervention," he told SkyNews.com.au.

"On an occasion where the world along with Australians are combining in their grief at the loss of our Queen of Australia noting the passing of an era and of a wonderful warm gracious human being we have a desperate attempt by a public figure unable to extend the common decencies and courtesies which should be extended in a civilised society.

This unhinged, poorly-informed and ahistorical rant by a university professor (yes, she really is - I checked) tells you everything you need to know about the state of Australian universities. <https://t.co/dHuH73QIdM>

— Gideon Rozner (@GideonCRozner) September 9, 2022

“One hopes the senator gains the personal insight to understand how inappropriate her intervention has been.

“Her Majesty presided over the Commonwealth of Nations including many ethnicities peoples and cultures.

“To besmirch Her Majesty in the manner undertaken is appalling and completely flies in the face of the objective evidence.”

Ms Faruqi’s post comes just hours after Greens leader Adam Bandt was slammed for being “insincere” as he called for a republic.

Rest In Peace Queen Elizabeth II.

Our thoughts are with her family and all who loved her.

Now Australia must move forward.

We need Treaty with First Nations people, and we need to become a Republic.

“Rest In Peace Queen Elizabeth II,” Mr Bandt said.

“Now Australia must move forward.

“We need a Treaty with First Nations people, and we need to become a Republic.”

The Greens leader is a strong supporter of Australia becoming a republic and as a result refuses to display the Australian Flag behind him during press conferences.

He also showed support for indigenous Greens senator Lidia Thorpe calling the Queen “a coloniser” when swearing her oath of office in August.

Appearing on Sky News Australia shortly after was Nationals MP Barnaby Joyce, who said it’s not appropriate to push political agendas this soon.

Sky News Australia host Piers Morgan says Her Majesty the Queen "never put a foot wrong" and was an extraordinary woman. Mr Morgan said the Queen "provided so much solace and comfort" to Britain and "so much inspiration to the world". "That is...

“Today is not the day to play politics and this sort of buffoonery of using this as a soap box to push your political agenda,” he told host Tom Connell.

“Why not reflect on the dignity and grace of a human being whose passed away.”

Her Majesty, the longest-reigning monarch in British history, died aged 96 surrounded by family at her Balmoral home, with her son issuing a statement at about 4am AEST.

Stolen land she says...does she also mean the land that was used to create Pakistan, which didn't exist until 1947?

Should they give that stolen land back to India?

There may be only negative consequences in pushing Diversity and Inclusiveness for all we are worth.

Some high achieving nations are quite plainly reducing to a minimum such fashionable ideas.

There is zero rational basis for them after all is said and done : the wreck social cohesion. Is that a good thing as well ?

I was born and raised in England but for half my life I have called Australia home. I have only ever known one monarch and I mourn her passing. There is no place for politics in a persons passing whether it be a someone of authority or not. When I (legally) emigrated to Australia with my wife (who is of asian decent) we followed one simple ethic - "assimilate or ship out". Australia is one of the greatest places in this world to live and we as immigrants are priviledged to be here - we should not try to change this country into the one we left !

You Know it really makes me sick when you live in a commonwealth country and most came for a better life and then you complain I am so sick of this card being played by some of the immigrants who live here, You are here because in your country it was bad to live as a woman you had no life and men ruled in most of the middle eastern countries and if you don't like it you can go back to Pakistan, or where ever it is, You are lucky to be here and as most will say it is the best country, what I will never understand is why come in the first place, we are a commonwealth country and very proud, I too am an immigrant and I am so glad that I am here, I love Australia and all it stands for.

I am extremely sad at the tweets of Green Senator Mehreen Farooqi who is being paid by Australian text payer where she lives and enjoys her life in a colony" Australia" and I am proud to say that I left Pakistan and called Australia the best country of the world my home till I die. I think people like Mehreen should denounce Pakistan citizenship and leave Australia. I am proud to vote for LNP since 2013 and will do till I die and I am going to be the member of LNP and take part in the politics of my home Australia and one day I may be a senator or a member of Parliament who will fight for Australia in politics against left loony Green and Labor. I am proud to be conservative and right wing .

The greens want respect for all minorities, and that is a Nobel cause. Unfortunately they just don't give any respect to anyone else, the hypocrisy of the green fascists is now in full view for all to see. How can anyone support the greens is beyond comprehensive. I wonder if Mr Bandt will have the same accolades when he is 96?

The printing of worthless money from what I understand is mostly the issuance of government bonds which are then bought by the Fed (or the sovereign equivalent).

That is if the bonds are not bought elsewhere. It also involves the practice of rolling the bonds over instead of paying at expiration.

As far as I'm aware, all western governments have been doing this at a high rate ever since 2008 and it is a non partisan activity. They are all at it.

They share a view on climate change Koss. The "reality" of climate change is just you adding your opinion. In my view the reality of climate change is different to yours. My view is that at 0.04% CO2, we don't have enough CO2 to achieve the catastrophe the greens predict. That is 4 to achieve the catastrophe the greens predict. That is 4 CO2 molecule per 10000 molecules. The other 9996 molecules (mostly nitrogen and oxygen) don't absorb in the infrared range (well there is also CO and CH4 in tiny amounts). You are expecting a lot from those 4 vibrating molecules. Perhaps that's why the stats show either miniscule or no warming. If you know how 0.04% will lead to catastrophe let me know the mechanism.

I don't know what to say Koss, I'm just quoting basic chemistry. I don't have to give a reference for the infrared absorbance of CO<sub>2</sub>. Nor do I have to give a reference that N<sub>2</sub> & O<sub>2</sub> do not absorb in the infrared. Pick up any university level text book.

The 4:10000 ratio is simple math based on the widely published CO<sub>2</sub> figures.

That infrared absorbance causes bond stretching (vibration) is 2nd year chemistry.

The onus is on you to prove that such a perturbation will lead to catastrophic climate change. That's an assertion or hypothesis based on modelling and that modelling has a high level of uncertainty.

Peer review of research is a reassurance, it is not definitive proof. I have peer reviewed scientific work in the past. My review just represents my interpretation of the data presented.

"Peer review" in early 2021 indicted the the mRNA vaccines could prevent infection and transmission of Cov2.

Peer reviewed research in 2022 says they cannot.

Empirical evidence proves they cannot just as the empirical evidence for the magnitude of climate change is debated.

This is not really the forum for tech debates but you did ask.

You obviously don't understand our Senate voting system and the climate bill is a classic example of capitalism being used to tackle a problem .

The Labor government has provided the conditions for people to promote and invest in renewable energy and pollution abatement projects.

These investors will expect a return on investment, capitalism at work. If you don't know what socialism is or how our voting systems work, just say so

Here we go again.

Renewables get subsidies that coal and gas powered electrical power providers don't receive.

Renewables don't provide base load power. Only reliable power suppliers can do that; power generated via coal and gas.

Albanese is going to spend enormous amounts of taxpayer funds just to help renewable power supplies.

Albanese is also going to use taxpayer funds to make purchasing EVs cheaper. That won't help low income earners.

Tell us what is going to make renewable power cheaper?

Cutting off the taxpayer provided subsidies for the renewables?

Using more EVs which require power from thin air?

Tell us where we can buy genuinely cheaper power that is provided by renewables? The Fairy Godmother doesn't sell it.

Danielle, just like a green voter you babble on without any understanding of the facts. Democracy is not what we have in Australia. Elections by preferences is a butchered version of Democracy. It is not one person one vote. If the party I vote for does not get enough votes that party can then use my vote however they want. In other words the individual at the top of that party is voting millions of times, regardless of how I originally wanted to vote.

If Mehreen Faruqi stopped for a moment, and used her brain, she would understand that the Queen did not reign over a racist realm. The United Kingdom, has always welcomed different people from different countries and cultures. In fact, Commonwealth nations specifically have certain rights in their relationship as a Commonwealth Country. Perhaps Faruqi refers to people (past Kings and Queens) who were enthroned at the times and periods Faruqi refers to. Queen Elizabeth II always considered the Commonwealth nations part of the realm, and also their people accordingly. From this perspective, Faruqi is just plain ignorant to blame people from the present, for the mistakes of people from the past. Typical of the half thought out Greens ideology. And certainly the wrong time to express her ignorance, to a nation which largely loved and embraced the Queen. Clearly Faruqi in her quest to virtue signal, and criticise others, simply does not understand much at all, and would be best advised to keep her mouth closed on subjects of which she knows little.

There is a time and place for everything, including free speech, but not a diatribe masquerading as the same.

Extremist, ideological woke culture however with its name-calling and virtue-signalling has actually served a positive purpose in this instance.

I don't need to look it up, AJ. I've studied it at length. Sorry, should no doubt apologise for that. Conservatism is - in essence - the resistance of change. Logically, a resistance of PROGRESS.

Conservatism is preservation of existing patterns - or better still, reverting to traditions to past.

That is the definition of conservatism. If you don't like that definition, take it up with lexicographers. That's what it means.

It's not a matter of opinion. If that's not YOUR version of conversation, then you have invented something entirely different. That is your right. Go for it. Just don't call it conservatism because its definition is not debatable.

It is what it is!

Find a new term for your political ideal if that doesn't suit you.

Conservatism is - by its actual definition - anti-progress.

Invent your own lexicon for it if you can't accept that reality.

Existing patterns are often the result of validated observation. An existing pattern is not necessarily wrong. It is a feature of post modern wokeism that the meaning of words can be changed since there is no such thing as a truth. Truths and words are social constructs. Isn't that how it goes? I disagree with that view.

The conservative view is that there are truths and these truths are knowable.

The conservative view used to be that poly aromatic hydrocarbons were harmless. The conservative view now is that they are not.

The conservative view used to be that the earth is flat. Now it is not.

Definitions seem to be debatable. I note that the definition of a woman is currently under widespread debate.
